Abstract: This report provides the full questionnaires in English translation for the Swedish Generations and Gender Survey. The Swedish GGS was carried out by means of telephone interviews and follow-up postal or online questionnaires during 2012 and 2013. Some data were collected through population registers. A target population of 18,000 individuals aged 18-79 years produced 9,688 respondents (response rate 53.8%). 6,830 respondents also filled out the postal / online follow-up questionnaire. The field work was carried out by Statistics Sweden’s Survey Unit. An aggregated version of the Swedish GGS is available through the Generations and Gender Programme website at the Netherlands Interdisciplinary Demographic Institute: http://www.ggp-i.org/data/data-access.html. In this version of the Swedish GGS a number of variables have been aggregated or dropped. The full version of the survey is available to researchers at the Stockholm University Demography Unit and the Ageing Research Centre, Karolinska institutet, through Statistics Sweden’s Micro-Online Access system (contact: Helen Eriksson at the Demography Unit). Restrictions to use are due to legal constraints.

Swedish families in time
Right now we are conducting a large survey on Swedish Families in Time. By interviewing people throughout the country we want to study daily life, work life and family relations for women and men in different phases of life throughout time. The Swedish results will be comparable with results from other countries and your responses can, among other things, be used as background material for family policy decisions in countries where similar surveys are taking place. The survey is undertaken in cooperation with the UN’s Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE). This gives a unique opportunity to answer such questions as: How do different societal conditions influence important decisions and aspirations in life? How does this differ across countries and why? These questions are important for individuals as well as for political decision-makers. Further information about the survey in Sweden and other countries is available at the homepage www.suda.su.se/ggs. After the survey is concluded, you will be able to find on the homepage an overview of the survey’s results.

Why have you been selected?
You are one of 18 000 randomly selected individuals between the ages of 18 and 79 who together represent the Swedish population within these ages. You are the one who can best describe your experience and opinions and therefore it is important that you participate. Your participation is of course voluntary but your responses cannot be replaced by those of anyone else.

Who is conducting the survey?
Swedish Families in Time is a collaboration between researchers at the Stockholm University Demography Unit (SUDA), the Aging Research Center at Karolinska institutet (ARC) and Statistics Sweden (SCB), who carries out the data collection.

How is the interview conducted and how much time will it take?
Within the coming weeks an interviewer from Statistics Sweden will contact you for a telephone interview. The interview questions will be easy to answer as they concern your daily life and your attitudes toward a number of issues. The interview takes approximately half an hour. The survey also includes a questionnaire that you can fill out either on paper form or on the internet. The questionnaire will be sent to you after the telephone interview is completed.

To make the interview easier
To ensure that the interview is as brief as possible, we will be using some information already available at SCB. For you and your partner (if any) this includes information about births, income, retirement, social transfers, your municipality of residence, nationality, completed education, moves within Sweden and any migration information. For your children (if any) we also use birth data. Furthermore we will complement the data with information about your parents’ year and country of birth. To be able to track the changes that occur in your work and family life we will, during the next six to ten years, add information from Statistics Sweden’s register for you and your husband/wife/cohabiting partner about children being born, changes in civil status, occupation, income, and possible cases of death.

The Information continues on the other side!
Your information is protected
Your information will be protected by secrecy according to chapter 24, section 8 of the Official Secrets Act (2009:400). This means that those working with the survey are sworn to secrecy and that no one without clearance will be able to use the information. After completed preparation at Statistics Sweden all identification details are removed, so that no one is able to see who the information is about, before it is delivered to the researchers at Stockholm University Demography Unit (SUDA), Aging Research Center at Karolinska institutet, the Swedish National Data Service (SND) and the UNECE database outside of Sweden. In reports concerning survey results your responses will be presented only as numbers in tables and figures together with other people’s responses. If you chose to participate in the survey you are, according to the Personal Data Act (1998:204), entitled to get information, free of charge, about which of the information about you that has been used. You also have the right to have erroneous information corrected. At any point during the survey you are able to withdraw your participation without giving any reason.

Do you want to know more about the survey?
If you have any questions about the survey, you are welcome to contact the survey director Mohammad Sepahvand, Statistics Sweden in Örebro at telephone 019-17 62 94 or e-mail GGS@scb.se or you can call any of the persons listed below.

Variable Names and Matches to GGP Wave 1 Questionnaire:

Questions are numbered with a capital letter and number. In the Swedish data files, the variable names correspond to the question number (A01, C23, etc.), but the letter is lower case. In the questionnaire below, the question number from the GGP Full Questionnaire, Wave 1, is included under each of the Swedish question numbers, starting with Q. If the GGP number starts with QR, the source of the information is for most respondents from 2011 population registers; the question was asked only when the information was not found in the registers or as a follow-up when the respondent was asked if the register information was correct and answered ‘no’.
Introduction:
As you know from the letter you received from Statistics Sweden and Stockholm University Demography Unit (SUDA), you have been selected to participate in the survey called Swedish Families in Time. The survey focuses on your current and potential future family relations and the economic and social conditions that affect family life. The answers that you and other respondents provide will help us to understand how Swedish family relations function and change. They will, among other things, be used to compare Swedish families with families in other European countries. The information may also be used to develop better family policy instruments to support individuals and their families.

Swedish families in time

Thank you for participating in the survey, Swedish families in time. The information you have provided in the telephone interview will give decision-makers and the public a better picture of family life in Sweden today and how it has changed and how it will continue to change in the future.

This questionnaire includes additional questions that are important for understanding family change but that take less time to answer than the interview. Most of the questions offer alternatives that you can simply choose. Your participation is, of course, voluntary, and you can refuse to answer single questions, but your answers can never be replaced by anyone else’s!

You can choose to answer the questions on the Internet. You will find the questions at www.insamling.scb.se. Log in with the following user-id and password:

If you choose instead to answer the questionnaire via the paper form, send it in the postage-paid envelope.

Your information is protected

Just as in the telephone interview in which you participated earlier, the information you provide is protected by the law on openness and secrecy (2009:400) together with the law on personal information (1998:204). Everyone who works with the survey is bound by confidentiality and the results that are presented never include any individual answers. The number at the top of the form allows Statistics Sweden to know who has answered and who should get a reminder. After Statistics Sweden has finished working on the data, all identifying information that would allow anyone to see to whom the information refers is removed before your answers are given to researchers at the Stockholm University Demography Unit, the Aging Research Center at Karolinska Institute, the Swedish National Data Service and the UNECE database held outside Sweden. In reports about the study’s results your answers will be presented only as numbers in tables and figures, together with others’ answers.

Do you want to know more about the survey?

If you have questions about the survey, you are welcome to contact the survey leader, Mohammad Sepahvand, Statistics Sweden in Örebro by telephone at 019-17 61 94 or by email to GGS@scb.se or you can call one of us listed below.

More information about the survey in Sweden and in other countries is found on the home page www.suda.su.se/ggs. After the survey has been completed, you will be able also to find overviews of the survey’s results.

Thank you for participating in the survey. Your participation is important and of great help!

Thank you for participating in the survey!
Swedish families in time

Thank you for participating in the survey, Swedish families in time. The information you have provided in the telephone interview will give decision-makers and the public a better picture of family life in Sweden today and how it has changed and how it will continue to change in the future.

This questionnaire includes additional questions that are important for understanding family change but that take less time to answer than the interview. Most of the questions offer alternatives that you can simply choose. Your participation is, of course, voluntary, and you can refuse to answer single questions, but your answers can never be replaced by anyone else’s!

You can choose to answer the questions on the Internet. You will find the questions at www.insamling.scb.se. Log in with the following user-id and password:

Password:

If you choose instead to answer the questionnaire via the paper form, send it in the postage-paid envelope.

Your information is protected

Just as in the telephone interview in which you participated earlier, the information you provide is protected by the law on openness and secrecy (2009:400) together with the law on personal information (1998:204). Everyone who works with the survey is bound by confidentiality and the results that are presented never include any individual answers. The number at the top of the form allows Statistics Sweden to know who has answered and who should get a reminder. After Statistics Sweden has finished working on the data, all identifying information that would allow anyone to see to whom the information refers is removed before your answers are given to researchers at the Stockholm University Demography Unit, the Aging Research Center at Karolinska Institute, the Swedish National Data Service and the UNECE database held outside Sweden. In reports about the study’s results your answers will be presented only as numbers in tables and figures, together with others’ answers.

Do you want to know more about the survey?

If you have questions about the survey, you are welcome to contact the survey leader, Mohammad Sepahvand, Statistics Sweden in Örebro by telephone at 019-17 61 94 or by email to GGS@scb.se or you can call one of us listed below.

More information about the survey in Sweden and in other countries is found on the home page www.suda.su.se/ggs. After the survey has been completed, you will be able also to find overviews of the survey’s results.

Thank you for participating in the survey. Your participation is important and of great help!

Thank you for participating in the survey!
Swedish families in time

Thank you for participating in the survey, Swedish families in time. The information you have provided in the telephone interview will give decision-makers and the public a better picture of family life in Sweden today and how it has changed and how it will continue to change in the future.

This questionnaire includes additional questions that are important for understanding family change but that take less time to answer than the interview. Most of the questions offer alternatives that you can simply choose. Your participation is, of course, voluntary, and you can refuse to answer single questions, but your answers can never be replaced by anyone else’s!

You can choose to answer the questions on the Internet. You will find the questions at www.insamling.scb.se. Log in with the following user-id and password:

  Userid:
  Password:

If you choose instead to answer the questionnaire via the paper form, send it in the postage-paid envelope.

Your information is protected

Just as in the telephone interview in which you participated earlier, the information you provide is protected by the law on openness and secrecy (2009:400) together with the law on personal information (1998:204). Everyone who works with the survey is bound by confidentiality and the results that are presented never include any individual answers. The number at the top of the form allows Statistics Sweden to know who has answered and who should get a reminder. After Statistics Sweden has finished working on the data, all identifying information that would allow anyone to see to whom the information refers is removed before your answers are given to researchers at the Stockholm University Demography Unit, the Aging Research Center at Karolinska Institute, the Swedish National Data Service and the UNECE database held outside Sweden. In reports about the study’s results your answers will be presented only as numbers in tables and figures, together with others’ answers.

Do you want to know more about the survey?

If you have questions about the survey, you are welcome to contact the survey leader, Mohammad Sepahvand, Statistics Sweden in Örebro by telephone at 019-17 61 94 or by email to GGS@scb.se or you can call one of us listed below.

More information about the survey in Sweden and in other countries is found on the home page www.suda.su.se/ggs. After the survey has been completed, you will be able also to find overviews of the survey’s results.

Thank you for participating in the survey. Your participation is important and of great help!

Thank you for participating in the survey!
Swedish families in time

Thank you for participating in the survey, Swedish families in time. The information you have provided in the telephone interview will give decision-makers and the public a better picture of family life in Sweden today and how it has changed and how it will continue to change in the future.

This questionnaire includes additional questions that are important for understanding family change but that take less time to answer than the interview. Most of the questions offer alternatives that you can simply choose. Your participation is, of course, voluntary, and you can refuse to answer single questions, but your answers can never be replaced by anyone else's!

You can choose to answer the questions on the Internet. You will find the questions at www.insamling.scb.se. Log in with the following user-id and password:

- Userid:
- Password:

If you choose instead to answer the questionnaire via the paper form, send it in the postage-paid envelope.

Your information is protected

Just as in the telephone interview in which you participated earlier, the information you provide is protected by the law on openness and secrecy (2009:400) together with the law on personal information (1998:204). Everyone who works with the survey is bound by confidentiality and the results that are presented never include any individual answers. The number at the top of the form allows Statistics Sweden to know who has answered and who should get a reminder. After Statistics Sweden has finished working on the data, all identifying information that would allow anyone to see to whom the information refers is removed before your answers are given to researchers at the Stockholm University Demography Unit, the Aging Research Center at Karolinska Institute, the Swedish National Data Service and the UNECE database held outside Sweden. In reports about the study's results your answers will be presented only as numbers in tables and figures, together with others' answers.

Do you want to know more about the survey?

If you have questions about the survey, you are welcome to contact the survey leader, Mohammad Sepahvand, Statistics Sweden in Örebro by telephone at 019-17 61 94 or by email to GGS@scb.se or you can call one of us listed below.

More information about the survey in Sweden and in other countries is found on the home page www.suda.su.se/ggs. After the survey has been completed, you will be able also to find overviews of the survey's results.

Thank you for participating in the survey. Your participation is important and of great help!
